

Martin Priestley

Managing Director
Bamford Partners

Martin has spent almost forty years in the finance sector, focusing predominantly on debt and equity in the property sector. He has held leadership roles in banking, investment banking, funds management and debt and equity origination. In the early 2000's he was CEO and Board Director of Ashe Morgan Winthrop (now Ashe Morgan) and a Board Director of AMAL Asset Management. A position with CBRE followed where he founded and built Debt, Equity and Servicing business in Australia and New Zealand. From 2017 until retiring in 2023, he was Head of Debt, APAC for Nuveen, a board member and Responsible Manger for Nuveen Australia.

His career spans time working in the US, Canada, Europe and throughout Asia with board positions for public and private companies along with a number of Responsible Manager and Independent Director roles for Australian Financial Services Licences.

He created the Bamford group of companies (named after the village in which he grew up) which specialise in capital raising, corporate advisory and funds management.

He holds a BSc (Hons) and the UK FINSIA qualification and has attended a number of business school programmes and coordinated several YPO Harvard Business School seminars.

Martin shares his time between Sydney, a macadamia farm on the Mid North Coast and travelling.
